

Assistants

Rogers & Hardin's positive culture and the professional rapport our attorneys share with its staff members are reflected in the extended tenure of our assistants, many of whom have worked at the firm for more than 20 years and one of whom has been with her present partner for over 30 years.

Assistants are generally paired with three to five timekeeper assignments. The Firm has a support services center to assist with copying, faxing, and mail. Our Microsoft Certified computer trainer is available to help new employees learn our computer system through hands-on classes and our Learning Management System. We also encourage all staff and attorneys to sign up for computer Lunch and Learn classes offered throughout the year.

"I have been employed at Rogers & Hardin for over 30 years, but it does not seem like it has been that long. My job at R&H is fulfilling because I am part of a team that is the best-of-the-best and is committed to providing the highest quality of service to its clients."
